No-zero policy for grades under review

Standards. Trustees say clarity is needed in the board's student-assessment policy

MAURICE TOUGAS
maurice.tougas@metronews.ca

Edmonton public-school trustees agreed Tuesday to launch a full review of the board's student-evaluation process following weeks of public debate over one high school's no-zero policy.

Trustees voted unanimously in favour of trustee Michael Janz's motion "to review policies related to student assessment to ensure clarity, consistency and to ensure that students are held to high standards."

The review was forced by weeks of debate, touched off when Ross Sheppard High School teacher Lynden Dorval revealed that he had been suspended for insubordination after he defied the school's policy of not giving students zeros.

Dorval spoke briefly at the meeting, saying "the system is broken and needs fixing." Speaking to the media after, he said he has not been fired.

Trustees heard from members of the public, none of whom supported the policy. Doug Senuik, a social-studies teacher at Ross Sheppard for 20 years, blamed "overzealous principals" and said there was "no evidence or sound research" to support the no-zero policy.

Trustee Heather MacKenzie said she wanted to see a "clear philosophical statement" about the value of assessment, and trustee Leslie Cleary said the review is necessary to "balance the tsunami of public opinion" on the issue.

'Open' payment

Transit 'smart fares' inching ahead

Using a bank card or cellphone to pay transit fares is the latest in technology, as opposed to a smart card, says a report that councillors discussed on Tuesday.

Known as "open" payment, the system, if adopted, would bill users at the end of the month.

While supportive of the $30-million initiative, councillors wanted a breakdown of costs before discussing whether to spend the money during budget deliberations this fall.

Transportation general manager Bob Boutilier said if approved, the technology could be brought on board in a year to 18 months. He also said the province might chip in some funds, as the capital region is looking at a partnered fare system. METRO

High school grads on the rise: Province

More high school students in Alberta are donning cap and gown, the province says.

A release issued Tuesday says Alberta's three-year high school completion rates rose about two per cent to 74.1 per cent in 2011.

"Albertans expect this province to reach its full potential, and more students finishing high school is key to securing a bright economic future for our province," said Jeff Johnson, minister of education.

The release also said dropout rates have fallen 3.2 per cent in students aged 14 to 18. METRO

Slain guard buried in bridal gown

Memorial. Loved ones pay tribute to Michelle Shegelski as lone survivor of shooting is removed from intensive care

Michelle Shegelski was a tough armoured-car guard, but also a romantic woman who wore white lace and ruffles for a princess-style wedding just two months ago.

It's the same dress her family chose to lay her to rest in on Tuesday, as 200 people gathered at her funeral.

"Her family thought it best to have her wear the gown she wore on the happiest day of her life," Marcia Loder told the service.

Loder officiated at Shegelski's wedding and said the young woman designed the dress herself for a Victorian-style ceremony at Fort Edmonton Park.

"She was a practical person and would have seized any opportunity to wear her wedding dress again," Loder said with a laugh.

Others described the 26-year-old they fondly called "Mic" as a strong, courageous woman with a quirky sense of humour. They said she was always making funny faces and often tugged at her hair, which she called the "pull start" for her brain.

And she was a passionate reader, who would have several books on the go at a time.

Shegelski was shot dead with two other armed guards while they were restocking a bank machine at the University of Alberta on June 15. A fourth guard was shot in the head and is recovering in hospital in Edmonton.

Another guard who was on the crew has been charged with first-degree murder, attempted murder and robbery.

Shegelski's funeral program quoted some of her blog entries. In one, she wrote about hurrying to work for her night shift: "I suffer through the old runoff, moving down the dimly lit stairway to receive a briefing from the last shift. They're tired and want to go home. Hell, we all do. 'The password's changed. Don't forget.' I study it carefully before crumbling it into illegibility.

"Security. It's what we do." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Details

- Travis Baumgartner was arrested one day after the robbery as he tried to cross the Canada-U.S. border with $330,000 in a backpack.
- About 500 people attended a private memorial service in Edmonton on Sunday for all three murder victims.

Fit foodies. Cooking can lead to an overall healthier lifestyle

LAURIE CALLSEN
laurie.callsen@metronews.ca

Kids who lend a helping hand in the kitchen are more likely to eat fruits and vegetables, according to a study from the University of Alberta.

Yen Li Chu and Paul Veugelers conducted the survey with 150 Grade 5 classes across Alberta, and found that students who helped in the kitchen were 10 per cent more likely to eat fruits and vegetables than students who didn't.

"(Cooking) is a way to show appreciation for healthier foods and a way to get (children) to eat more," said Chu.

Quoted

"It's definitely making a difference. Kids are excited about the nutritious food they bring in their lunch."
Erin Whelen, Grade 2 and foods teacher at Brightview School

Jayda Gregg-Way, a Grade 2 student at Brightview School, is a budding chef. She has started to eat more fruits and vegetables since she started cooking three years ago.

"I like to cook because it's fun, and you get to try new things," she said.

Brightview School is part of Apple School, a U of A initiative that promotes healthy eating and active lifestyles.

Teacher Erin Whelen facilitates cooking healthy meals in class. "(We) bring kids into the kitchen to give them the opportunity to learn some new skills that they could take home and share with their family," she said.

This is the first year Brightview has been an Apple School, and already Whelen is noticing more kids choosing healthy food options.

Domestic dispute

Standoff ends peacefully

Police said a standoff Tuesday in Edmonton's southwest involving a man and a baby barricaded in a home ended peacefully.

Just before 12:30 a.m. EPS responded to a domestic dispute at a home near 122 Street and 43 Avenue involving a 28-year-old man, a 25-year-old woman and a 10-month-old infant.

Police said the woman left unharmed while the man barricaded himself in the suite with the infant. He surrendered to police around 7 a.m. Police said several knives were recovered during a search of the home.

Packed schools to get portables

Two packed-to-capacity public schools will get some breathing room next year thanks to new portables approved by the public school board Tuesday.

Johnny Bright and Esther Starkman schools will get six portables each, with the $1.3-million cost coming from the board's capital reserve fund.

Trustees were none too pleased that the board, and not the province, had to fund the portables. Chairman Dave Colburn got board support for a motion that urged the government to "provide adequate funding to support our complex infrastructure needs," adding the use of reserve funds for infrastructure was "unsustainable." China. Family called traitors for breach of one-child policy, father beaten

The Chinese father of a forcibly aborted fetus whose case prompted an international outcry has been beaten and forced into hiding.

Meanwhile, his wife and other family members have been labeled traitors by fellow townspeople, the man's sister said Tuesday.

Photos of the mother and dead fetus had been circulated online, embarrassing the government and prompting the suspension of three local officials in Shaanxi province.

They had forcibly aborted the late-term pregnancy earlier this month because it violated the country's tough one-child policy.

Apparently angered over the family's contacts with journalists, the local government has since organized a backlash against the family members, calling them traitors.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Background

Deng Jiyuan's wife Feng Jianmei, 23, was forced to undergo an abortion on June 2 — seven months into her pregnancy — because the family could not afford a $6,300 US fine for having a second child. Graphic photos of the dead fetus lying next to Feng were posted online, drawing public condemnation and renewing criticism over the one-child policy.

- The Ankang city government apologized openly, suspending three officials and promising an investigation.
- But Deng said officials were cracking down on the family as well.

Addiction. UN pegs cost of proper global treatment of addicts at up to $250B a year

Drug abuse worldwide is stagnant but still kills about 200,000 people a year, the UN's drug-fighting agency said in a report released Tuesday.

Based on 2010 figures, the United Nations Office for Drugs and Crime also said global treatment for drug abusers would cost to $200 to $250 billion a year if everyone needing help received the proper care.

But the report noted that far less than that is being spent, meaning fewer than one in five people needing help actually get it.

Also, it said, loss of productivity and crimes committed by those needing to finance their habit result in huge additional costs.

In its annual report, the UN body said that about five per cent of the world's population used illegal drugs at least once in 2010.

Drug use remained stable in the five years up to 2010.

U.S. study looks at HIV testing in drugstores

Free and fast. Test is a swab taken inside the mouth, and the results come in 20 minutes and are 99% accurate

Health officials in the U.S. want to know if Americans would go to a drugstore for an HIV test.

And to find out, U.S. health authorities have set up a pilot program.

The $1.2-million project will offer free rapid HIV tests at pharmacies and in-store clinics in 24 cities and rural communities, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention announced Tuesday.

Officials are hoping testing for the AIDS virus will become a routine service at drugstores like blood-pressure checks and flu shots.

"By bringing HIV testing into pharmacies, we believe we can reach more people by making testing more accessible and reduce the stigma associated with HIV," CDC's Dr. Kevin Fenton said in a statement.

Fenton oversees the agency's HIV-prevention programs.

Since 2006, the CDC has recommended that all Americans ages 13 to 64 get tested at least once, not just those considered at highest risk: Gay men and intravenous drug users.

But fewer than half of adults younger than 65 have been tested, according to the agency's most recent statistics.

It's important to know about infection not only for treating it but also to take steps to prevent spread.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Details

The tests are already available at seven places in the States, and the CDC will soon pick 17 more locations.

- If the test is positive, customers will be referred to a local health department or health-care providers for a laboratory blood test to confirm the results, and for counselling and treatment.
- An estimated 1.1 million Americans are infected with HIV, but as many as 20 per cent of them don't know they carry the virus, according to the CDC. It can take a decade or more for an infection to cause symptoms and illness.
- When the project ends next summer, CDC officials will analyze what worked well and what didn't, said Paul Weidle, the epidemiologist heading it up.

Man killed woman 'in cold blood' for her apartment, court hears

Serial killer Camille Cléroux confessed to murdering his 64-year-old neighbour because he liked her apartment better than his own.

Cléroux said in a June 2010 police interview that he killed Paula Leclair the month before because her apartment, in the same housing complex in Ottawa, had space for his things, a better view and was rent-controlled, Crown prosecutor James Cavanaugh told an Ottawa court Tuesday.

"Before the interview was over, Mr. Cléroux confessed to murdering Ms. Leclair in cold blood," Cavanaugh said.

Cléroux pleaded guilty Tuesday to first-degree murder in the death of Leclair, as well as two counts of second-degree murder in the deaths of two of his ex-wives, Lise Roy and Jean Rock.

MORGAN MODJESKI
Metro in Saskatoon

A 21-year-old woman from Saskatoon has talked of her link to accused body-parts killer Luka Rocco Magnotta.

Destiney St. Denis is the creator of one of the largest Magnotta Facebook fan sites.

She says Magnotta told her to create the page "weeks prior" to the day he was arrested in a Berlin Internet café after fleeing from Montreal.

St. Denis says she has passed the Facebook page administrator status to another person. She feels she was "somewhat" manipulated by Magnotta.

"I talked to him about it prior to what happened, he didn't tell me anything about the murder, but he asked me if I could make a page about him," said St. Denis, who initially messaged Magnotta about videos posted online of kittens being suffocated. "The last message he sent me was … right before he got caught."

When asked why she continued communication with Magnotta, she said: "I don't know — he would always send me hearts in messages if I don't reply to him."

When asked if she'd forgive him for manipulating her, she replied, "Yes."

Asked whether she'd keep in touch with Magnotta, she replied, "No comment."

Asked why she was so interested in him, St. Denis answered: "It's because of his looks and his personality, but I understand he is a psychopath."

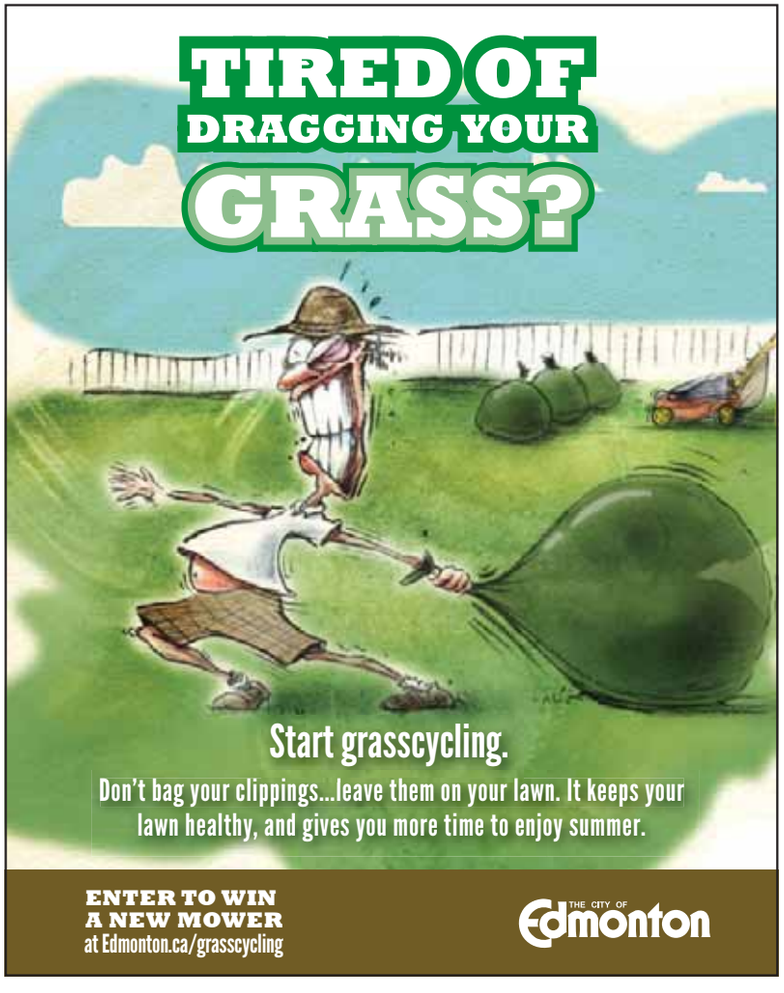

Magnotta is charged with first-degree murder in the slaying of Chinese student Jun Lin, 33.

WITH FILES FROM THE CANADIAN PRESS

Grim, gore

Mark Olver, an associate professor of psychology at the University of Saskatchewan, says there are a number of reasons why someone would be drawn to Magnotta.

- Attraction. "It's an attraction to the grim that has made him such a spectacle," Olver says.
- Fascination. "There's a lot of fascination with core violence and notorious people and some people have a tendency to glorify and idolize that. I don't know why."
- Notoriety. "Some people have a fascination with gore, with the macabre and celebrate these notorious figures," Olver added.

North Korea dispatched soldiers to pour buckets of water on parched fields and South Korean officials scrambled to save a rare mollusk threatened by the heat as the worst dry spell in a century gripped the Korean Peninsula.

Quoted

"The worst drought in 104 years is causing damage to our agricultural and livestock industries, resulting in price hikes in some farm products."

South Korea's Finance Minister Bahk Jae-wan, speaking at a crisis-management meeting Tuesday

Parts of North Korea are experiencing the most severe drought since record-keeping began nearly 105 years ago, meteorological officials in Pyongyang and Seoul said Tuesday.

The protracted drought is heightening worries about North Korea's ability to feed its people. Two-thirds of North Korea's 24-million people faced chronic food shortages, the United Nations said earlier this month while asking donors for $198 million in humanitarian aid for the country.

Even in South Phyongan and North and South Hwanghae provinces, which are traditionally North Korea's "breadbasket," thousands of hectares of crops are withering away despite good irrigation systems, local officials said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Record heat hampering efforts to fight wildfires

Searing, record-setting heat in the U.S. West didn't loosen its grip on firefighters struggling to contain blazes in Colorado, Utah and other Rocky Mountain states.

Colorado has endured nearly a week of 48-plus C days and low humidity, sapping moisture from timber and grass, creating a devastating formula for volatile wildfires across the state and punishing conditions for firefighters.

"When it's that hot, it just dries the fuels even more. That can make the fuels explosive," said Steve Segin, a fire spokesman for the U.S. Forest Service.

Much of Nevada, Utah, Wyoming and Colorado are under a red-flag warning, meaning conditions are hot, dry and ripe for fires.

For the fourth straight day, Denver cleared 38 C and reached a record-high temperature of 41 C Monday. Other areas in the state have also been topping 38 C, including northern Colorado where the state's second-largest wildfire in history is burning.

And the scorching heat doesn't appear to be letting up soon. Temperatures across Colorado were expected to clear 38 C again on Tuesday. Segin said such prolonged heat is "extremely taxing" physically on firefighters, who are working long days and carrying heavy gear.

The wildfires are also posing a threat to tourism.

Several large wildfires across the West have placed some tourist destinations from Montana to New Mexico in danger just at the height of midsummer family road-trip season, putting cherished western landscapes at risk along with hordes of vacationers.

In Colorado, the $5-billion US tourism industry is on edge as images of smoke-choked Pikes Peak and flaming vacation cabins near Rocky Mountain National Park threaten to scare away summer tourists. Flames from the wildfire burning near Colorado Springs could be seen from downtown early Tuesday, said one report.

Naked photos. Lawyer compares Manitoba judge to a rape victim

Removing a Manitoba judge from the bench for appearing in sexually explicit photos would be akin to penalizing a rape victim whose assault was videotaped and uploaded to the Internet, a lawyer argued Tuesday.

"Would the system of justice ever say that (a rape victim) had to be removed from the bench?" Sheila Block asked a panel of the Canadian Judicial Council.

"It is the antithesis of what the administration of justice stands for."

Block's client, Lori Douglas, is being investigated by the council over accusations she sexually harassed Alexander Chapman in 2003.

Chapman was given naked photos of Douglas by her husband Jack King.

One of the four allegations being heard by the council is whether the very existence of the photos — some of which show Douglas in bondage gear and performing sex acts — damage public confidence in her or the justice system.

King has admitted he uploaded and distributed the photos without his wife's knowledge. Block called it an act of unforgivable betrayal of the couple's most intimate moments.

To penalize Douglas for that would be patriarchal, Block said during her opening submissions Tuesday.

Douglas rose to the position of associate chief justice of the Manitoba Court of Queen's bench, heading the family court division.

Honeymoon squelched as floods drown a town

Sicamous, B.C.

Downpours spark torrents that wash away businesses, homes — and people's hopes of a seasonal boom

This house was pushed off its foundation in the Sicamous, B.C., emergency. JONATHAN HAYWARD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Up until this past Saturday, just before noon, Andre Robert was eagerly awaiting getting hitched to his fiancée come December in Hawaii.

Then the rain started.

And within two hours and a 15-centimetre jump of water, the couple's plans washed away — along with large swaths of their town.

Widespread flooding in Sicamous, B.C., has halted the 29-year-old's boat-rental business just as the seasonal boom was about to go full throttle.

"We can go do the cheap justice-of-the-peace kind of thing, but we were hoping to go to Hawaii and elope on the beach there somewhere," said Robert as he powered a boat from A.J.'s Marine Rentals through just one of multiple swollen lakes and rivers in British Columbia.

About 350 people in the summer tourism town of 3,100, more than 340 kilometres northeast of Vancouver, were ordered moved to safety.

Its Two Mile subdivision was declared under a state of emergency after the weekend's natural disaster.

It topped the list of a series of communities in the B.C. Interior, the Kootenay region and the Fraser Valley where flooding is impacting lives.

Across the province, about 700 people have been forced from their homes and another 1,000 remain prepped to move out at a moment's notice.

Sicamous residents' livelihoods are usually propelled by 100 days from June to September.

But fast-flowing waters, sprung from torrential showers and rapid snowmelt, cleaved a path of physical and economic devastation.

Heartache

"It's a town that cares and Sicamous will get through it. However, there's going to be a lot of heartache in the meantime."

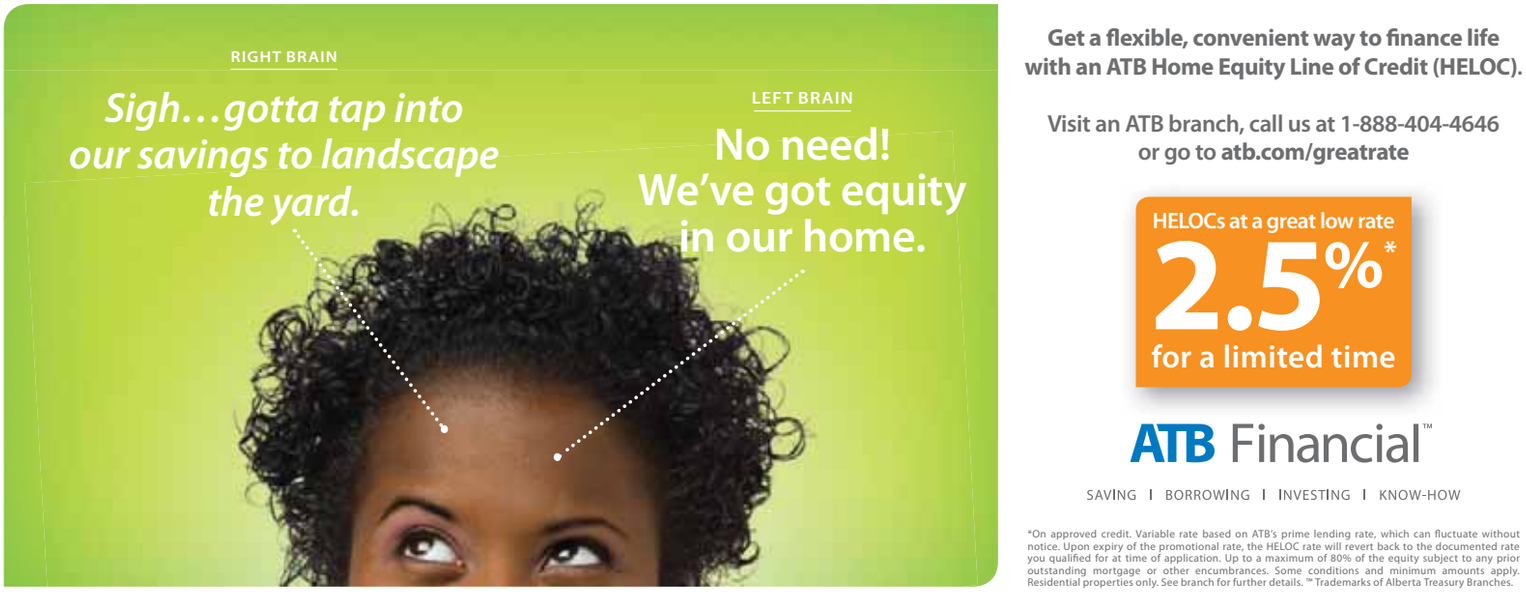

Bob, a retired vacationer from Calgary whose family has had a home in the area for 40 years.

That weather has stymied business for the marinas, boat and houseboat rental outlets. The Saturday storm triggered a massive debris flow that began when a river became plugged with logs.

Massive pressure released the jam, sending rafts of water diverting from within the banks and thrusting down a road, through a parking lot and cascading around waterfront property.

A cottage was pushed off its foundation, several dozen vehicles were submerged, and an asphalt road gave way to leave gaping holes that swallowed vehicles.

Rogers cuts 375 jobs amid lower profits, tough competition

Connect. Rogers, Bell and Telus are vying for lucrative smartphone subscribers on next-generation networks

People walk past a Rogers store in Montreal Tuesday. Rogers Communications Inc. says it will cut 375 jobs. RYAN REMIORZ/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rogers Communications Inc. will eliminate 375 jobs, a move that comes as the wireless, cable and Internet provider cuts costs in the face of lower profits and tougher competition on all fronts.

The staff reduction is part of a cost-cutting strategy announced earlier this year and includes employees in the business, wireless, and cable and Internet divisions. They follow 300 job cuts announced in March.

For its first quarter, Rogers posted a lower profit of $305 million, or 57 cents per diluted share, on $2.95 billion in revenue for the first quarter. That compared with a profit of $335 million, or 60 cents per diluted share, on $2.99 billion in revenue a year ago.

Rogers' cable division is also battling fellow industry giant Bell, which has rolled out its Internet Protocol TV service in Montreal and Toronto. The service is delivered over an Internet Protocol network and allows users to watch sports, for example, while pulling up stats.

The layoffs in March focused on management and head-office positions. At the end of 2011, Rogers had almost 29,000 employees. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coca-Cola. Soda giant to invest extra $3B in India

The Coca-Cola Co. and its bottlers plan to invest an additional $3 billion US in India over the next eight years to boost the soda giant's stake in the rapidly growing market.

The world's biggest beverage maker, whose brands include Minute Maid, Dasani and Powerade, is seeing some of its biggest gains come from emerging markets as growth at home slows.

In its first quarter, for example, Coca-Cola said its volume rose 20 per cent in India, compared with a two per cent increase in North America.

Including the new cash infusion, Coca-Cola said Tuesday that it now plans to invest $5 billion in India from 2012 to 2020. That's more than double the $2 billion it has invested since re-entering the market in 1993.

The Atlanta-based company had pulled out of India in 1977 to avoid handing control over to its Indian subsidiary and revealing its secret formula. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Appeal Court allows bank overtime lawsuits to go ahead as class-action cases

Class-action lawsuits against CIBC and Scotiabank seeking hundreds of millions of dollars for unpaid overtime can go ahead, the Ontario Court of Appeal ruled in a pair of decisions Tuesday.

The suits allege thousands of workers were denied overtime pay even though they were assigned more work than could be completed within their standard hours. The cases come amid a slew of similar cases over wage and hour issues south of the border.

A lower court had denied class-action status to the CIBC case, while a different court had allowed class-action status to be granted to the Scotiabank lawsuit.

However, the Appeal Court felt both cases, which have not been proven in court, should be handled the same way.

In the CIBC case, teller Dara Fresco filed a lawsuit in June 2007.

Fresco launched the case on behalf of more than 31,000 tellers and other front-line customer-service employees working at more than 1,000 CIBC branches across Canada, including assistant branch managers, financial-service representatives, financial-service associates and branch ambassadors.

Cindy Fulawka, a personal-banking representative at Scotiabank, filed her class-action lawsuit against the bank in December 2007 seeking to represent some 5,000 Scotiabank personal or senior bankers, financial advisers and small-business account managers. THE CANADIAN PRESS

O CANADA, THIS IS WHY I LOVE MY COUNTRY

JUST SAYIN'
Paul Sullivan
metronews.ca/justsaying

We must be getting close to Canada Day as all the news wires are clogged with Canada stories.

For example, this just in: U.K. academics rate O Canada as more difficult to sing than La Marseillaise, the French national anthem, and only slightly less difficult than The Star-Spangled Banner, the American anthem.

I beg to differ. La Marseillaise is great for storming the Bastille, but it's a little lusty for anything else. And, as far as I know, only Kelly Clarkson can handle "O say can you see …"

I like O Canada, even if lines like "in all thy sons command" are rarely spoken in real life. But it's right up there with a few of my other favourite Canadian things, which I will now share, as my Canada Day gift to you.

1 The loonie (and toonie). I love that our coin has character. I almost don't care that the new ones won't fit in parking meters or vending machines. Almost.

2 Iconic tourist attractions. Banff, Lake Louise, Niagara-on-the-Lake, the Canadian Niagara Falls, the Anne of Green Gables House, the Empress Hotel, Lunenburg, Old Montreal, etc. You can always tell you're in an iconic tourist attraction, because they always feature fudge. I'm not sure why, but the fudge factor is 100 per cent reliable.

3 Vancouver's Stanley Park. This could never happen today — 405 hectares of rainforest in the middle of one of the most densely populated cities in North America. Even better? It's a 10-minute bike ride from my place. And speaking of iconic, it has its own resident beaver, not to mention raccoons, herons, skunks, cormorants and coyotes.

4 The CBC. Battered, bruised, unable to produce watchable sitcoms, Canada's national network should be enshrined in the constitution for Peter Gzowski alone. You never know. Another one might come along someday.

5 The Charter of Rights. This is the best thing. Read it: laws-lois.justice.gc.ca/eng/charter

6 Roots. I love that it was started by two Americans but is somehow undeniably, irresistibly Canadian. Products sold here go well with fudge.

7 The Canadian flag. Makes you want to stand under it and sing "in all thy sons command" in the wrong key. Even if you're from France.

8 Wychwood Park. A tiny enclave in Toronto, the epicentre of Marshall McLuhan's Global Village. The best unknown neighbourhood in Canada.

National pride: Canada Day fireworks.
TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

9 Head-Smashed-In Buffalo Jump: A world-heritage site in southern Alberta, where Prairie aboriginal people used to corral bison off the cliff and secure a year's supply of meat and hides. Stand on the precipice and look out beyond the centuries. Power place.

10 Cross-border shopping: Cheese and chinos for half the price! Avez-vous quelque chose à declarer? And welcome home.

Ling sets the scene of the daring feat: "The branch was not stable and the macaque hung unsteadily over the river. It almost lost its footing more than once.
"It's not easy to drink upside down while hanging onto a branch with one leg."

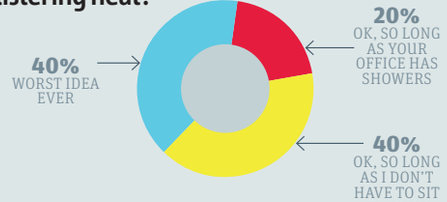

Macaques 101

- Local assets. Tamed macaques have been trained by locals in Southeast Asia to climb up trees to throw down coconuts to farmers below. Trained ones have the ability to recognize ripe from unripe fruit, and can pick 800 to 1,000 coconuts per day.
- And global ones too. They are used extensively in research against HIV infection.

The cult of the man-child

Here's to the boys. They're raunchy and immature — so why do we love to watch grown men act like teenagers?

IN FOCUS
Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

Mark Wahlberg, left with the character Ted, voiced by Seth MacFarlane in a scene from Ted. UNIVERSAL PICTURES/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"When I'm lyin' in bed at night," Tom Waits sang, "I don't wanna grow up."

He's not the only one. In recent years Cineplexes have been overrun by boy-men: adult males who still act as though they're 16 years old.

This weekend in the Seth MacFarlane comedy Ted, Mark Wahlberg is John, a man-child who had trouble letting go of his childhood teddy bear who came to life as the result of a childhood wish.

He does everything with Ted — including cower when a storm hits. "Thunder buddies for life, right, Johnny?" says Ted. John replies with an answer we can't print here.

That's one of the hallmarks of the man-child movie, they're raunchy.

Step Brothers is a rude and crude arrested development comedy with enough swearing to make Lenny Bruce blush. Will Ferrell and John C. Reilly play spoiled, unemployed men thrown together Brady-Bunch style when their patents wed.

They don't get along at first — they even try to bury one another alive — but soon their shared passion for karaoke brings them together, like two overgrown kids in a playground.

Adam Sandler has made a career playing testosterone-fuelled men who never grew up. In Mr. Deeds, Just Go with It, The Waterboy and Happy Gilmore he plays characters with the emotional age of a Baby Gap customer, but the classic is Billy Madison, where he plays a hotel heir forced to go back to grade school.

As Sandler was throwing temper tantrums on screen Jason Segel was slowly defining his child-man act. I Love You Man, with its Man Cave and Rush soundtrack, was a warm up to his most grown-up portrayal of an adolescent man. In Jeff, Who Lives at Home he plays a 30-something who lives at home and is obsessed with the M. Night Shyamalan film Signs. Overgrown and underdeveloped he turns an outing to the hardware store into a wild day.

Peter Pan with a plan

The common link to many of these man-child movies is one man — producer Judd Apatow.

- If it ain't broke... Not since Jerry Lewis has one man made so much money presenting the age-old gag of self-infantilizing on screen.
- Big names. He's worked with Ferrell, Sandler and Segel, and it was his R-rated The 40-Year-Old Virgin and Knocked Up that gave us Seth Rogen's brand of prolonged childhood.
- Plans to recruit Paul Reubens? Apatow even recently announced he's thinking about making a movie with pop culture's ultimate man-child, Pee Wee Herman.

Managing anger and its expectations

Sitcom television.
Sheen re-hashes a mix of old characters, new settings in his latest show Anger Management

Charlie Sheen plays Charlie Goodson and Selma Blair plays Kate Wales in a new comedy Anger Management. ADAM ROSE/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nik Wallenda has nothing on Charlie Sheen.

Sure, the famed high-wire artist thrilled millions as the first person to cross Niagara Falls on a tightrope.

But that amazing feat lasted a mere half-hour, and Wallenda, had he lost his footing, would have been saved by a protective tether. Besides, the prayer-reciting daredevil called for holy reinforcement as he took his lofty stroll.

By contrast, hell-raising Sheen has tempted fate for decades without a net. There's been nothing to defend him from his death-defying appetites but tiger blood, Adonis DNA and endless bluster.

That is the tightrope Charlie Sheen cavorts on, 24-7, where at any moment he is poised to upstage everything else (as he did a year ago with his stormy exit from Two and a Half Men, complete with his public rantings and his chaotic Torpedo of Truth concert tour). Now, never really gone, Sheen is back. He has a new comedy series, Anger Management, which will air Tuesdays on CTV this fall and for which there will be a sneak peak following the Summer Olympics

Nominally based on the 2003 Adam Sandler-Jack Nicholson movie, the series has been tailored to fit Sheen's image and comfort zone. Once applauded as a talented actor, here he presents yet another version of the self-styled Charlie Sheen-esque character he played as Charlie Crawford on Spin City and Charlie Harper on Men. On Anger Management, he plays a psychologist named — wait for it — Charlie Goodson. Charlie Goodson is a former up-and-coming baseball player who, in a fit of rage during a game, tried to break a bat across his leg and messed up his knee. What else could he do for a post-athletic career but become an anger management therapist?

With that, the series takes a step beyond the nonstop hedonism Charlie Harper championed on Men. Along with enjoying good times, Charlie Goodson is trying to transform his motley clients, and himself, into less angry people.

In short, Anger Management displays a bit of heart, and surprisingly turns out to be tamer than Men.

Charlie has a 15-year-old daughter he adores, a sassy ex-wife he lets push his buttons, and, in addition to the paying members of his therapy group, he also volunteers at a penitentiary to work with cartoonish hardened inmates.

Meanwhile, he realizes that he still has anger issues and decides to seek counselling for himself.

"Why do you need a therapist? You ARE a therapist," his neighbour asks.

Charlie responds this way: "Did you ever see a tow truck hauling a tow truck?"

Of course, Charlie being Charlie, there's a problem.

"There's only one tow truck I trust," he sighs, "and unfortunately, I'm having sex with it."

He's talking about Kate, a fellow therapist and his no-obligations bedmate, to whom he pledges in the sack, "I promise I will never love you."

But can Kate be his friend-with-benefits and his therapist, too?

The writing has its bright moments, and the supporting cast proves serviceable but Anger Management exists solely to showcase Sheen, as it trades on the underlying joke: his own reputation.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

All about Charlie

Why the show will work

- Premise. The new show is just the latest act for the attention-gorging Sheen as he operates in league with his faithful codependents: a vigilant public and the media that guarantees his prominence. So Anger Management is an OK, if slight, sitcom with a big star at its centre. But since that big star is Sheen, his show is impossible to predict whatever off-script spectacle he will find himself in.

The Flaming Lips. Band set to break live show record

Fun for Wayne Coyne of The Flaming Lips means collaboration, and a recent dust-up with Erykah Badu after they worked together isn't slowing him down.

Coyne and the Lips will launch an attempt at the Guinness World Records mark for most live shows in 24 hours, playing eight concerts between Memphis, Tenn., and New Orleans on Wednesday and Thursday. Trailed by fans along the way, they'll meet up with acts like Jackson Browne, Grace Potter & The Nocturnals, Gary Clarke Jr. and Hunter Hayes as part of the activities surrounding MTV's O Music Awards.

The Oklahoma rockers have been finalizing details and juggling schedules and logistics as they chase Jay-Z's record of seven shows in a day.

"If you had to really consider all this in the beginning, you just simply wouldn't want to do it," Coyne said in a phone interview last week. "Luckily, it occurs to you when you get closer and closer. I think it's a little bit like having a baby. At the beginning of it is a lot of fun, but by the time it's here, really it's too late to turn back."

That analogy isn't too far off the mark when it comes to describing the row between Badu and Coyne, either. Things seemed to be going great until the Lips released the video for The First Time I Ever Saw Your Face, their Heady Fwends record store day collaboration, earlier this month. The Lips eventually retracted the video after Badu accused the group of releasing it without her approval.

In the video Badu sits apparently naked in a tub, then later her sister Nayrok mucks about in a milky white substance and glitter. The disagreement spilled over on Twitter where Badu invited Coyne to kiss her "glittery" posterior and Coyne responded with a picture of himself with lips covered in glitter.

The Beach Boys are back

Good Vibrations. New album and extensive tour ain't too shabby for Brian Wilson and co.

PAT HEALY
scene@metronews.ca

Mike Love, lead singer of the Beach Boys performs in May in Las Vegas, Nevada. JEFF BOTTARI/GETTY IMAGES

Within the first minute of conversation, Al Jardine is marveling about the fact that the Beach Boys are together again, celebrating 50 years of music, with a new album called That's Why God Made the Radio and a tour with a set list that reflects half a century of sunny surf songs.

"It's truly amazing that we're cognizant enough," he starts. "No, that's the wrong word, that we're capable enough of delivering the goods at this high of a level for a 50-song set."

Jardine is funny, candid, self-deprecating and acutely aware that the history of America's original party band includes more than a few chapters that are not at all Fun, Fun, Fun.

The guitarist and singer was one of the founding members of the legendary band and he performed as a Beach Boy through the late '90s, when the death of another founding member, Carl Wilson, caused the band to splinter into a situation where members with different names for their projects played Beach Boys tunes. Jardine's project was called the Endless Summer Band.

He says the years of playing these classic songs without his fellow founders necessitated a little adjustment when all of the surviving members came together again.

"We had to get used to everybody's personalities in the band, because we didn't use our own bands," he says. "Brian, for the most part, used his own band, because he's the most sensitive to that as his people have been a component to his resurrection, really. He's really insistent on keeping that chemistry together, and we went along with it."

The Brian he's speaking of, is of course the genius in residence, Brian Wilson, who stopped touring with the band in the mid '60s to focus on writing and producing the band's albums (as well as to reduce the stress on his notoriously fragile psyche). But even the pressures of producing, coupled with drug use, caused Brian Wilson to have a nervous breakdown when the Beach Boys were at their creative peak. The album that Wilson was working on with the band, SMiLE went unfinished for almost 40 years until that resurrection period Jardine mentioned.

But Jardine seems very happy to have so many members who are so close to Wilson on the stage with him.

"For the first time in the history of our music-making, we've had enough people on stage to do all the parts," he says.

"We overdubbed so much — we were like harmony fanatics — that we never could put all of it together in one place at one time. Now you have the original voices and pretty darn good players and singers doing the parts that the three or four of us haven't ever done. We used to combine everything, like in Good Vibrations."

Reunited and it feels so good

"It's a good sign for the world, that these guys, these litigious Beach Boys have been able to bury the hatchet. We can still share a positive thing. The good vibrations are alive and well — let's put it that way — in this band."

Al Jardine, founding member of The Beach Boys, guitarist, composer and occasional lead vocalist

50 Cent released after suffering car accident injuries

Rapper 50 Cent was hospitalized in New York Tuesday after sustaining injuries in a car accident on the Long Island Expressway, according to the New York Daily News.

A report on the rappers website claims his SUV was rear-ended by a Mack truck, causing it to nearly flip over. 50 Cent "was taken to New York Hospital Queens where he was treated for minor neck and back injuries," his rep told reporters.

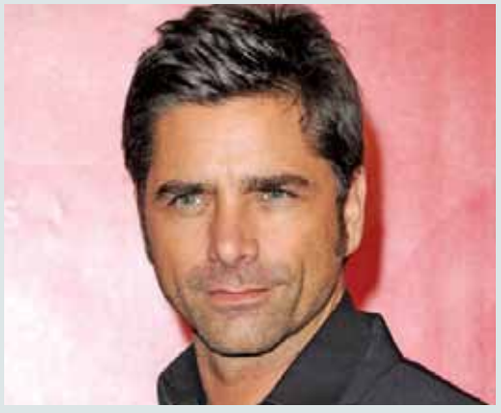

"He was released this morning and is doing fine."

John Stamos puts out booty call bat-signal

MONICA WEYMOUTH
scene@metronews.ca

John Stamos has a reputation as a smooth-talking party boy, but the actor insists this isn't the case.

"I try not to get trapped into everybody's image of who they think I am or who I should be," he tells Celebuzz. "I'm a guy that wants to be in a relationship and should be in a relationship. Sometimes I'm afraid of it because I don't want to let people down. You don't want to disappoint people."

This guy occupied Uncle Jesse's leather pants for the better part of the '90s. He can't possibly tell us that there is not an army of 20-somethings lining up to look in his sparkly green eyes and be disappointed. Or can he?

"You think I'm in New York, playing around. I sometimes feel the responsibility to be that guy," says Stamos, who is in the city shooting a film when not perfecting his sensitive, misunderstood act. "(But) I've been in New York for five weeks now, and I've gone to bed by myself."

John Stamos, did you just send out your bat signal of a booty call? We're honoured.

Cyrus sets off wedding speculation

An innocent-enough Twitter post from Miley Cyrus over the weekend led to an avalanche of speculation that she and fiancé Liam Hemsworth would be tying the knot as soon as this week.

"Super lazy Sunday. Can't wait for next week," Cyrus posted.

But it turns out Cyrus is actually just eager for Hemsworth to visit, as he's shooting a movie in Louisiana. A source close to the Australian actor says not to expect a wedding anytime soon. Right now they are enjoying being engaged," the source says.

When awkward goes on exhibit

A Sheboygan museum is hosting an exhibit of awkward moments. The John Michael Kohler Arts Center in New York is featuring 51 photos accumulated through the popular website awkwardfamilyphotos.com. It's the first time the collection is being shown in a museum. Childhood friends Mike Bender and Doug Chernack launched the website in May 2009, after Bender saw an awkward vacation photo in his parents' house. Within a week, the site was receiving millions of visitors a day and thousands of submissions from around the world. Visitors to the exhibit can also share their own family photos and stories for a chance to win prizes. It runs through Oct. 27.

5 spots to feel Canadian on Canada Day

O, Canada Day. Many Canucks claim to love the holiday more than Christmas and it's easy to see why. It's a better time of year weather-wise and a great excuse to relish in all things special to our home: toonies, double-doubles, ketchup chips and 'eh,' our word of affirmation that often brands us as Canadians. Where are the best places to feel patriotic on our nation's birthday? Here's our top five:

DAWN CUTHBERTSON
life@metronews.ca

ROBBER ESQ/FLICKR

5 Kingston

The country's first capital and home of Canada's first prime minister, Sir John A. Macdonald, the Limestone City is bursting with history. Fort Henry, built for protection from the U.S. during the War of 1812, is a must-see, but the place to be on July 1 will be Lake Ontario's waterfront between Kingston and Bath, Ont., to witness a suspenseful re-enactment of the Flight of the Royal George.

BOZDOZ/FLICKR

1 Halifax

One minute there are Mounties marching and the next acrobats flying through the air. The Royal Nova Scotia International Tattoo runs July 1 to 8 at the city's Metro Centre and people come from all over to witness the spectacle made up of military and civilian talent. This year's theme touches on the RMS Titanic, the Queen's Diamond Jubilee and the War of 1812.

2 Ottawa

Thousands of people are expected to flood Parliament Hill in the nation's capital to celebrate Canada's 145th birthday. A must-experience at least once in your life, the atmosphere can't be beat as revellers break out their red and white best. Concerts by popular Canadian musicians, a traditional flag-raising ceremony and a spectacular fireworks display are among the festivities.

3 Your own backyard

You don't have to go far to find pride in Canada on the nation's birthday. Block parties typically break out in neighbourhoods across the country as everyone's off work and in a celebratory mood. Hosting a red-and-white-themed barbecue, where everyone washes down their favourite foods with a few Canadian-brewed cold ones, is a great way to show your patriotism close to home.

4 Vancouver

Watching new Canadians take their citizenship oath is a moving experience and on July 1, a traditional ceremony will kick off the events at Canada Place. From street hockey and a lumberjack show to a penny party in which citizens are encouraged to donate the soon-to-be forgotten coins to charity, Vancouver will be bursting with Canuck pride.

Think small, go Nantucket

Travel. Cosy island off U.S. East Coast keeps it old school and is now more welcoming to visitors — plan a trip for summer or fall

Classic Nantucket. THINKSTOCK

If you're lucky or determined enough to brunch at Nantucket's remote Wauwinet Inn, the lobster roll and bloody Mary from the acclaimed Topper's Restaurant is exquisite and worth the $41.

But you're not just paying for top ingredients. You're paying for the view of Nantucket Harbor from the island's eastern end, a scene that remains as close to the turn of the 20th century as any on the much-developed East Coast.

It's just one reason to consider this small island as one of your top summer destinations. Or better yet, plan for fall, when the prices are cheaper. More money for Bloody Marys.

Rich in history — that dates to a once-prominent whaling industry — Nantucket and its modern aversion to, well, modernity, has captured the best of old New England. (The island's governing bodies have established among many local rules a prohibition on any chains with more than 14 stores, except that rascal Ralph Lauren, and tight restrictions on how building exteriors look.)

More than ever, the island has opened up for travellers to sneak in and take an extended (long weekend, anyone?) peek. Nonstop flights from New York City's JFK Airport and from Boston on JetBlue now fly daily. A second daily flight is being added this month.

The flights aren't the only good deals Nantucket yields. A resort empire consolidated in the last two decades from existing hotels and cottages on the island by a Boston-based real estate mogul now offers very advantageous "shoulder season" deals.

Bottoms up!

Summertime and the drinking is easy

Midsummer's Night

Absinthe might be known as the Green Fairy, but this drink will go down much easier on a sweltering summer evening.

Galliano is a vanilla liqueur that adds an unexpected yet delicious element to this cocktail, and the blueberries should hang suspended in the drink like will-o'-the-wisps.

One of these beverages won't have you seeing sprites, but be careful — have a few, and you could become "that merry wanderer of the night," to quote Shakespeare's mischievous fairy Puck.

- 1 oz vodka
- 1/3 oz Galliano
- 2 oz cranberry juice
- 2 oz tart lemonade
- Fresh blueberries

1. Over ice, combine ingredients. Stir in a swirl of fresh blueberries.

ALL DRINKS BY JOE HOWELL, HEAD BARTENDER AT TORONTO'S THE SPOKE CLUB

Elderflower Lemonade

Though potent, this makes for a long, refreshing libation during the languid days of August.

Elderflower and lemon go together like a heat wave and a day off. Sadly, this recipe doesn't include a hammock to drink it in, and you probably won't find kids selling this particular lemonade for 50 cents a glass on your street.

Speaking of which, it's too hot to bother with homemade lemonade, so just buy some at the store.

- 1 1/2 oz Hendrick's gin
- 1/2 oz St. Germain Elderflower Liqueur
- 3 oz lemonade
- 3 oz soda water
- Two lemon wedges

1. In a tall glass filled with ice, add all ingredients. Then squeeze two lemon wedges in and stir gently.

Aperol Fizz

Just like September, the Italian aperitif Aperol manages to be bitter and sweet at the same time.

The liquor is also fairly low in alcohol, so you can drink it on a sunny patio without fear.

Try not to think of how few alfresco days you have left — Canadian winters are long, but they only make summer all the sweeter.

Hopefully the vitamin C in the orange juice will inoculate you against cold season.

- 1 ½ oz. Aperol
- 3 oz orange juice
- 2 oz soda water
- Orange or grapefruit slice

1. In a rocks glass with ice, pour Aperol, orange juice and soda water. Stir, and garnish with a setting sun of orange or grapefruit.

Cool and refreshing soup hot off the grill

Gazpacho is the perfect healthy summer food. While some people prefer their gazpachos made from raw vegetables, cooking the produce, then chilling it deepens the flavours. But who wants to head inside to cook in summer? That's why this grilled gazpacho is so great.

This soup serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

1. Heat grill to high. Using an oil-soaked paper towel held with tongs, oil the grill grates.

2. Place poblano pepper on grill and cook until charred and blackened on all sides. Place pepper in paper bag, close bag and allow pepper to steam in its own heat for 10 minutes while you grill the other vegetables.

3. Season tomatoes, zucchini, summer squash and onion with salt and pepper. Arrange on grill and cook until slightly charred and tender, about 4 to 5 minutes per side. Transfer to a platter and set aside.

4. Using paper bag to assist, rub pepper until all charred skin loosens and peels off. Using paring knife, cut out and discard core and seeds.

5. In blender, puree the poblano, tomatoes, zucchini, summer squash, onion, garlic, basil and oregano.

6. Transfer to a large bowl and allow to cool completely. When cooled, stir in the diced cucumber and orange zest and juice. Adjust the seasoning with salt and black pepper. Refrigerate for 2 to 24 hours. When ready to serve, drizzle each serving with balsamic vinegar and top with a bit of cheese.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 1/2 fresh poblano pepper
- 4 large tomatoes, halved
- 1 medium zucchini, halved lengthwise
- 1 medium summer squash, halved lengthwise
- 1 medium red onion, halved
- Salt and ground black pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup fresh basil
- 1 tablespoon fresh oregano
- 1 medium cucumber, peeled and finely diced
- Zest and juice of 1 orange
- 2 tbps balsamic vinegar
- 1/4 cup crumbled feta cheese

The ABCs of building a stunning CV: Four simple steps to a refined resumé

Paper work. Ensure that your working-self summary doesn't wind up in the recycling bin

CASSANDRA JOWETT
TalentEgg.ca

Getting your application to stand out doesn't have to involve perfumed stationery and pyrotechnics. ISTOCK

Keep it to one page
Your resumé should be short, easy-to-read and packed with information. Each word should be carefully chosen to showcase your experience and abilities. You don't have to include everything you've ever done, just the stuff that's relevant to the job you're applying for.

Try this: If you're having trouble cutting down your resumé, get friends or family to look it over and suggest areas that still need tightening. Also, try making the page margins and font size a bit smaller.

Create a different resumé for each role you apply for
You don't need to start from scratch each time, but you should tailor your experience and skills to match important keywords in the job description each time you apply. Scrap any unrelated details.

Try this: It's a good idea to maintain different "skeleton" resumés for each industry or sector you would like to work in. Add in specifics and change around words as needed.

Think functional rather than chronological
As a student or new grad, you probably had long gaps between work experience while you tried to balance school, finances and gaining meaningful work experience. That's OK! You have two options. Put your past roles in order of relevance to the job you're applying for, or put the one you think says the most about your abilities at the top and move down from there.

Ready-to-go versions

"It's a good idea to maintain different "skeleton" resumés for each industry or sector you would like to work in."
Cassandra Jowett

Try this: Work experience is still experience, whether you got paid or not. To save space, put everything under Work Experience and scrap the Volunteer Work section.

Be yourself, but keep it clean and simple
Although a creative, non-traditional resumé will make you stand out, be sure the person doing the hiring will really appreciate it before you go in that direction. Usually a resumé prepared in a word processor, such as Microsoft Word, printed in black ink on a white sheet of paper will do. There are hundreds of great looking templates out there, or you can start from scratch and create your own.

Try this: Easy-to-read fonts (avoid Times New Roman), bullet points and lines are great ways to ensure your resumé is not only readable but also visually pleasing without the use of colour, pictures or graphics. If you want to show off your creative side, point employers to your blog or online portfolio by including it with your contact information.

NO NEED TO FEEL THE BURN

Enhance your workouts this summer by playing it smart and safe, says a spokesperson with the Ontario Kinesiology Association (OKA).

As the mercury soars and humidity levels increase, don't let your desire to stay in shape pull rank over your common sense.

"It's awesome to exercise outside and to get some sunshine, but you've just got to be sun smart and hydration smart," says Scott Tate, a certified kinesiologist and personal trainer representing the OKA. "Physical activity is proven to prevent, manage and treat all sorts of diseases and conditions, but doing it safely is particularly important in the heat of summer."

Once temperatures climb above 25 C and humidity rises higher than 80 per cent, your body has a tougher time managing its internal thermostat. Add in exercise and that will further challenge the body's response, says Tate.

You are best to exercise in air-conditioned facilities, especially if you have a history of cardiovascular disease or are recently recovering from stroke or heart attack. Pregnant women should seek cooler spots for fitness because a developing fetus has less capacity to regulate temperature, he says.

Hydration is vital. Drink a cup or two of water 30 to 60 minutes before exercising. If your workout extends beyond 30 minutes, sip another cup or so. Be careful not to drink too much so that it makes exercising uncomfortable.

Watch your intensity and monitor your heart rate using cardiac watches, chest straps or new smartphone apps that let you measure your vital signs by holding your finger over a sensor.

Consider wearing fabrics that absorb moisture such as Dri-FIT garments that wick perspiration away from the body, advises Shaun Karp, a personal training expert based in Vancouver.

"Get your gym work done in morning because it's cooler outside," says Karp. "That gets it out of the way because it's hard to be motivated to go to the gym on a hot, sunny day. Besides, it's beneficial to work out in the morning because it speeds up your metabolism for rest of the day." – Kelly Putter

TAKE CUES FROM YOUR CHILDREN

Slot in family fitness during the summer when kids are out of school and itching to do something physical. To get started, Shaun Karp, a personal training expert based in Vancouver, recommends playing games kids love such as survivor tag in which multiple people become "it" or Marco Polo, a tag game often played in swimming pools.

"Take cues from your kids," Karp says. "You can't expect kids to do what adults want to do in terms of fitness. Catch might not be interesting enough for kids, but by running and playing tag you'll burn more calories."

Jyles intent on stepping out from Ray's shadow

CFL. Journeyman backup QB gets his time in the sun

Even when Edmonton Eskimos quarterback Steven Jyles sits by himself in his dressing-room cubicle, the memory of Ricky Ray is over his head — literally.

Above the bench and hooks is a plate with Jyles' name and number. Above that is a tiny plaque that reads "Ricky Ray 2002-2011." It reminds players that this is where the team's career passing leader sat before being dealt to the Toronto Argonauts for Jyles in a package deal last December.

On Saturday, Jyles has his coming-out party against Ray and those same Argos at Commonwealth Stadium in the opening weekend of the 2012 CFL season.

It will be the culmination of six years of hard work and broken dreams for Jyles, the 29-year-old from Baton Rouge, La. For six years he has stood on the sidelines with a clipboard and hit the field only when someone else got hurt or played poorly.

When the Eskimos traded for him, it was a signal that Edmonton general manager Eric Tillman believed Jyles was ready for prime time. It was Steven's turn, his moment in the sun. But as Jyles stood this week in front of Ray's old locker, almost every media question that came at him was about someone else. Yes, he said, he's replacing a legend.

"Ricky Ray's a great guy. A future Hall of Famer in my eyes," said Jyles.

No, he won't be overwhelmed by the grandeur of Ricky's Return.

"It's just another ball game for us."

His voice was emotionless, his mood that of a dental patient — polite but determined to get it over with.

Not his first go-around

Jyles played with Edmonton for two seasons when he began his CFL career in 2006. Since then, he has shone in spot duty with Saskatchewan, Winnipeg, and Toronto.

High-scoring forwards to enter Hockey Hall of Fame

Joe Sakic GETTY IMAGES

Joe Sakic was only four when his father took him to a hockey game and his life-long love affair with the sport began.

The stylish centre who spent his entire 20-year NHL career with the Quebec Nordiques-Colorado Avalanche franchise parlayed that passion into a berth in the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Sakic was voted into the Hall by the 18-member selection committee Tuesday along with three other star forwards who terrorized goalies over three decades — Adam Oates, Mats Sundin and Pavel Bure.

The players will be officially inducted into the Hall of Fame on Nov. 12 in Toronto.

"I remember when I was four my dad took me to a Vancouver Canucks game against the Atlanta Flames," Sakic recalled on a conference call. "I fell in love with hockey and I wanted to play."

Sakic and Sundin, who began their careers as teammates in Quebec City, were selected in their first year of eligibility, while Oates and Bure got in after waits of five and six years, respectively.

Among those overlooked were power winger Brendan Shanahan, now the NHL's disciplinarian who was in his first year of eligibility, and former coaches Pat Burns and Fred Shero. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Serena avenges Venus's defeat

Four-time champion Serena Williams returned to the same Court 2 where big sister Venus was upset a day earlier and restored family pride by opening Wimbledon with a 6-2, 6-4 victory over Barbora Zahlavova Strycova on Tuesday.

Petra Kvitova, meanwhile, returned to the court where she won her first Grand Slam championship a year ago, and overcame a shaky start and a late rain delay to beat Akgul Amanmuradova 6-4, 6-4.

One-man team vs. balanced attack

For Spain it's more about stopping one man, while for Portugal it will be about containing a whole team when the sides meet in Wednesday's European Championship semifinal.

While Cristiano Ronaldo holds the keys to Portugal's chances of taking a step closer to a first major trophy, Spain's charge toward an unprecedented third straight tournament title is anchored in selfless teamwork. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canada falls short vs. France

The Canadian women's basketball team closed out preliminary round play Tuesday by dropping a 56-47 decision to France at the FIBA Olympic qualifying tournament.

Canada crushed Mali 89-23 in its Group D opener Monday. Canada would only be eliminated from the next round if Mali posted a huge blowout win over France on Wednesday.

- Type. Four-door, front-wheel-drive compact sedan.
- Engine (hp): 2.0-litre SOHC I4 (150); 2.4-litre DOHC I4 (201); 1.5-litre SOHC I4 with electric motor (111).
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy) 8.6/5.6 (2.0).
- Base Price: $29,700.

Well-insulated cabin

Driving each of the three versions of ILX on Arizona's generally ripple-free secondary roads wasn't ideal for conducting suspension torture tests, but the cabins are well-insulated from road and wind noise and the cars are really quite competent road machines.

Well-equipped

All models show up in a well-equipped state and include a power moonroof, keyless push-button start, rear-view camera and a six-speaker audio system. The available Premium Package includes leather-covered seats (heated in front), premium audio system and 17-inch wheels (16s are standard).

Powertrain options

There's nothing shy about the range of powertrain options. Base iterations arrive with a 150-horsepower 2.0-litre four-cylinder engine that operates through a five-speed automatic transmission.

For the more performance-minded, there's a 201-horsepower, 2.4-litre four-cylinder that uses a six-speed manual gearbox.

At the socially conscious end of the lineup is the Hybrid that combines a 1.5-litre four-cylinder with an electric motor to generate 111 net horsepower. The Hybrid is teamed up with a continuously variable transmission (CVT) to produce 5.0 l/100 km in the city and 4.8 on the highway, compared to 8.6/5.6 for the 2.0 and 9.8/6.5 for the 2.4.

Review. It turns out that we like smaller cars ... when they're like this

MALCOLM GUNN
Wheelbase Media

If parent Honda's research is correct, the Acura ILX sedan will be a hit with a new crop of near-premium buyers who have their eyes on their bank accounts.

In fact, the compact ILX, which is just now arriving in dealer showrooms, is a far cry from the automaker's earlier entry-level efforts, such as the fun-loving Integra sedan and coupe from the 1980s and '90s, the flashier RSX coupe from the '00s and the Honda Civic-based CSX sedan that was retired prior to the 2012 model year.

Those models appealed to a more exuberant audience, including the so-called "tuner" crowd, while Acura's newest pocket sedan is for a growing segment of non-enthusiast Generation-Y-types in their mid-20s to mid-30s who favour affordable luxury with a side order of social responsibility.

As with the previous CSX, the ILX is actually based — very loosely — on the current Honda Civic, although the ILX is larger.

From the front and side, the ILX's high style is evident, however the short, rounded rear deck looks a bit out of place with the rest of the design and the result is a trunk of only modest proportions for its class.

ILX pricing begins at $29,700, including destination charges, for the base 2.0 and climbs to $36,900 for the Hybrid, while the 2.4 starts at $31,900.

Those values should appeal to the Gen Y target group, but it's likely that more aging baby boomers than Acura anticipates will also pick the ILX for its conservative stature, pampering amenities and appealing price.

Think you overpaid? You're not alone

Here's a good question: How much profit do you think dealerships make per new vehicle sold? TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

We have no idea how many people felt they got really hosed on price when they last purchased a vehicle. No one seems to track stats on hosings of that nature.

But the fine people of J.D. Power and Associates do have some insight into how Canadians "feel" about the prices they pay at dealerships, how much they "think" dealers make on each vehicle sale, and if those amounts strike them as fair or unfair.

J.D. Power conducted its survey on the above questions this spring (April-May), and noted that while there was some variance between buyers of the various brands, between one-fifth and one-quarter of all owners felt they had, in all likelihood, overpaid for their new ride.

Consequently, this group of buyers, at least one-fifth of all respondents, felt they had paid an "unfair" price.

Well, it just so happens that J.D. Power also surveys dealerships. During the same period as the consumer survey, the responding dealerships said they earned an average "front-end" gross profit of $1,161 per new vehicle sold.

How much did consumers "think" dealers made on each new vehicle sold? About 36 per cent of respondents estimated the dealer profit at more than $3,000, while a further 26 per cent estimated it to be between $1,500 and $3,000.

In its press release of this survey, J.D. Power felt this "extremely inflated (consumer) view of retailer per-vehicle gross profit" was a big problem for dealers, especially as many consumers don't know and/or appreciate all the dealership expenses that have to be recovered by those profit margins.

The problem, as I see it, is that's not really a problem, just a situation. It's virtually impossible for both parties to be happy all the time. And a little wariness on both sides is a not bad thing.

There are other factors dragging down the perception relationship too. For example, how can a customer feel like she's just stolen a car when she over-extended herself to hand over a cheque for $30,200 or so (the average transaction price YTD)?

And everybody thinks everybody charges too much for everything that's in-demand. I don't recall ever asking myself, after buying a delicious and refreshing Mocha Coconut Frappuccino from my favourite coffee emporium, "My, my, how can they sell these things for only $6.95?"

And yet another problem is that nobody wants to pay more than somebody else did — something that's extremely hard to establish either way. If you suspect the price is unfair, you would prefer that everyone got hosed too.

Which reminds me, time to water the lawn.

Four, six or eight cylinders: What's the difference?

Driving Force. If you're new to the car world, take heed as writer Jil McIntosh dishes out engine cylinders 101

drive@metronews.ca

You've undoubtedly heard engines described by their cylinders: a four-cylinder, or maybe a V6 or V8. But what does it mean, and why are there different sizes?

"It depends on what you want the vehicle to do," says Hayato Mori, manager of product planning for Honda Canada.

"You want adequate power, but you also want very good fuel economy. You could put a V6 in a Civic and you would have lots of power, but there would be a heavy penalty on the fuel side when compared to a four-cylinder."

Cylinders are exactly as they sound: hollow cylinders bored into the engine. They contain pistons, which rapidly move up and down when the engine is running.

The pistons are attached to a heavy central shaft, called a crankshaft, and their up-and-down movement turns the crankshaft just as your legs move up and down to power a bicycle. The crankshaft's spinning motion is what eventually turns the wheels.

In the past, an engine with more cylinders was almost always more powerful. Today, thanks to various technologies, some four-cylinder engines can make as much or even more power than some six-cylinder engines.

Four-cylinder engines have their cylinders laid out in a row. This is called an inline four, or "I-4." Most six-cylinders and all eight-cylinders have theirs slanted down toward the crankshaft in a "V" shape, which is why they're known as a V6 or V8.

"It comes down to space," Mori says. An engine with four inline cylinders is small enough to fit, but putting six or eight cylinders in a line would require too much room under the hood.

In addition to their cylinders, engines are also rated in litres, such as a 3.5-litre V6. This number is its displacement, which refers to the interior volume of all of the cylinders combined. Improved engine technologies also mean that you don't necessarily need a larger-displacement engine to produce a lot of power.

Brand new Boxster ripe with changes

Dream Car. A half-price 911 that delivers all the thrills? Where do we sign up?

MALCOLM GUNN
Wheelbase Media

Porsche says you don't drive fast in a Boxster. Rather, you drive the third-generation roadster "with a dynamic driving style."

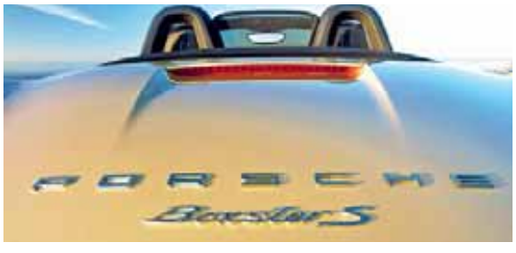

Remember that phrase should your exuberance attract the local constabulary, although reciting it likely won't save you from financial penalty and attendant points deduction.

For the 2013 model year, Porsche's dynamically daring Boxster is brand new, despite appearing familiar with its mid-mounted engine and recognizable silhouette.

But the numerous differences collectively add up to significant change. The windshield is more steeply raked and has been relocated forward of the cockpit by 10 centimetres, presumably for aerodynamic reasons and to keep your noggin a safe distance from the windshield edge when entering/exiting.

The rest of the body is now edgier, especially the deeply sculpted door panels, reshaped fenders and a rear deck with a prominent spoiler that give the Boxster a squared-up presence reminiscent of the Carrera GT supercar.

Nearly 6.5 centimetres have been added between the front and rear wheels for greater legroom. Overall length, however, has increased by only about 2.5 centimeters due to reduced front body overhang. The Boxster's wheels have been moved farther outboard for a wider stance and the car now sits slightly closer to the ground, all of which aids stability and cornering composure.

Another noticeable design change is the latch-free power-operated soft top that no longer hides beneath a hard tonneau when folded; a portion of the roof remains exposed.

That doesn't in any way hinder the roadster's eye-riveting looks and allows the folding/unfolding process to occur in a quick-draw nine seconds (formerly 12) and "with a dynamic driving style" of up 50 km/h.

The cockpit has been re-engineered to a similar degree with a new centre console, control panel and optional sport seats that assist whenever the aforementioned dynamic driving style is initiated.

A console-mounted electronic parking lever now replaces the traditional handbrake control, which might upset some Porsche purists, but there's no denying its elegance.

Following this month's launch, the latest Boxster will generate considerable interest and once more leave Porsche 911 Cabriolet buyers wondering why they didn't save nearly half the car's $108,000 admission fee and instead select a roadster that can turn both corners and heads with equal aplomb.

Points

- Best-looking Boxster yet.
- More powerful, fuel-efficient base engine.
- Lack of hard tonneau cover seems like cost-cutting.
- No other automaker does transmissions like Porsche.
- Attractive base price, but pile on options and you're not that far from 911 territory.
- Another chapter in Boxster's impressive success story.

As more electrics roll out (the Toyota NS4 concept is pictured), the streets will grow quieter. This has some people concerned, particularly for the safety of sight-impaired pedestrians. Others say that drivers should just watch where they're going. ALL PHOTOS WHEELBASE MEDIA

Quiet riot

Auto Know. Are cars too quiet? As incredible as it seems, it's a problem that governments and companies are spending millions on while others claim that adding noise is yet just another crutch for lousy driving

TODD D. BURLAGE
Wheelbase Media

The entire initiative seems counterintuitive and a bit contradictory, at least on the surface.

In the name of noise-pollution control, automakers have spent decades trying to reduce sound emissions in their machines.

But in an effort to improve safety for pedestrians and bicyclists, federal mandates are being drafted this summer in the United States that are designed to make hybrid and electric vehicles (HEVs) ... less quiet.

Two studies by the U.S. National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) in 2009 and 2011 confirmed what the agency already suspected — HEVs operate so quietly they are a apparently a growing safety hazard to cyclists and pedestrians, especially the blind.

"Blind people simply cannot travel safely and independently without hearing vehicle sounds," said Chris Danielsen from the National Federation of the Blind.

"We use the sound of traffic to determine the speed and direction cars are moving, as well as if they are accelerating or decelerating. We got a lot of feedback from members saying they had close calls with these (electric) cars."

The NHTSA study found that at speeds below 35 m.p.h. (55 km/h) — the speed at which tire and wind noise are negligible — HEVs move so quietly, they are 37 per cent more likely to collide with walkers and 66 per cent more likely to collide with cyclists than traditional gas-powered cars.

These NHTSA findings, coupled with the Pedestrian Safety Act of 2010, have created a federal mandate for noise-makers to be built into all new HEVs by 2017.

Details are still being worked out, but some automakers are wasting no time addressing these upcoming regulations, and one is actually taking to the Internet to find a suitable sound.

Ford recently posted its four audible choices on its Facebook page for consumers to vote on which one is the best noise option for its future HEVs. (We've set up a direct link to Ford's media site: tinyurl.com/fordev-sounds).

"We're trying to find a distinct sound that's pleasing to customers and alerts them of an oncoming vehicle," said Dave McCreadie, Ford's noise/vibration supervisor for hybrid and electric vehicles.

"This sound needs to be something that can be integrated into a person's sound spectrum so they can immediately recognize the noise and associate with an (electric vehicle) approaching ... just like we do with emergency-vehicle sirens."

The Chevrolet Volt hybrid makes a chirping sound when its turn signal is activated and the Nissan Leaf electric car makes a whirling sound moving forward and a chirp in reverse. Toyota spent about two years developing a futuristic Jetson-like noise for its popular Prius hybrid, a unique sound that's standard on all 2012 models.

Final and firm federal mandates for minimum sound levels remain a few miles up the road. The NHTSA has until 2014 to release its guidelines and put these safety initiatives in place. And several issues will need to be addressed along the way.

Will the artificial noise come from the motor or will it be electronically simulated through a device mounted on or hidden in the front bumper?

Will the driver have control over whether the simulated sound is emitted, or will the warning noise be generated automatically?

Many details remain unsettled but some feelings of government intrusion on the issue do not. Paul Scott is the vice president of Plug In America, an advocacy group that promotes the use of electric and hybrid vehicles.

He said that the sound of silence provides much of the appeal to these HEVs and it should not be squelched.

"Quiet cars need to stay quiet. We worked hard to make them that way," Scott said. "It's the driver's responsibility not to hit somebody."

Scott and anti-noise-pollution groups are making plenty of their own noise with the belief that common sense and diligence should supersede big government on this matter. Their main argument is that the 125 collisions examined by the NHTSA between HEVs and pedestrians/cyclists in the 2009 study provided too small of a sample to offer much credibility.

"I don't know of any injuries related to this, but it is a concern," Toyota spokesman John Hanson said of the stealthy hybrids. "It's a fact that these cars are very quiet and could pose a risk to unsighted people."

The debate over minimum noise requirements is a lively one, but not a new one.

Back in the age of actual horsepower, the sound of sleigh bells had nothing to do with holiday cheer and everything to do with not getting trampled by a horse. The City of Baltimore even issued a $1 fine to anyone who didn't make their sleigh noisy enough.

We've come a long way since the days of sleigh bells and carriages, but the objectives for improved safety on the roadways remain the same.

For much of the general population, any mandate to increase vehicle noise may seem like a meddling government and a misguided waste of time and money on a problem that's at best anecdotal.

But for the 1.3 million Americans who are legally or completely blind, electric vehicles can be both silent and deadly, and a little fake noise could be a real lifesaver.

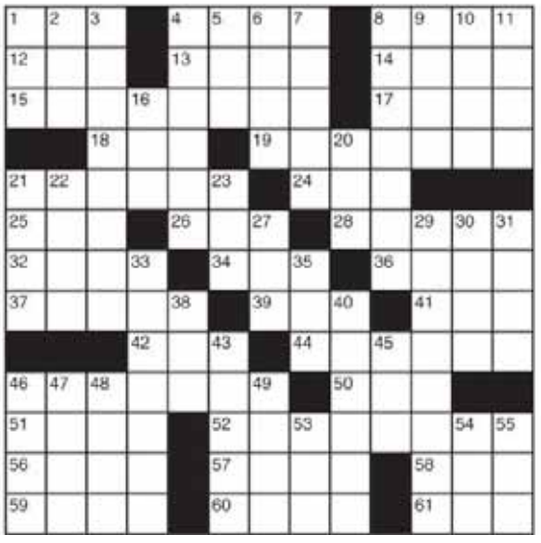

Should electric cars and hybrids all have the same recognizable sound? How loud should that sound be? What will generate it and when will it be needed? These are all questions that need answers.

MICHELE MCDOUGALL
WEATHER SPECIALIST
"My favourite part is reporting the weather. It fascinates me, and as we know around here, it's always changing, keeping forecasters on their toes". WEEKDAYS 5:30 AM

Horoscope

Aries | March 21 - April 20. You will be hugely affectionate and generous over the next 24 hours, not at all the me-first-at-all-costs Aries we know and love.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21. Do you control your desires or do you indulge them? That is the question you need to answer today and you'll have a fun time doing so.

Gemini | May 22 - June 20. You may be the kind of person who enjoys risks but with values planet Venus turning direct in your sign today, you might prefer to sit on the fence and see how things develop.

Cancer | June 21 - July 22. Take your pleasures where you find them and don't feel guilty that you are having such a great time while others seem to be struggling. You need to be generous to yourself.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. Things are going well for you now but you are afraid there is some kind of catch, a price to be paid for your good fortune. There isn't.

Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22. What happens today will calm your fears and make you realize that negative things are only likely to happen if you allow negative thoughts to get out of control.

Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22. This could be a restless sort of day for you, but the planets indicate that the more you chop and change, the more you will enjoy yourself.

Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21. Friends, relatives, colleagues and even strangers will gather round hoping for a handout today. Instead of giving them money, treat them to a few words of your Scorpio wisdom.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21. Praise seems to be coming your way in increasing abundance and there may be times today when you get a bit embarrassed by it all.

Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20. You won't be amused when someone you hardly know starts probing into your affairs. Protect your privacy.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. You can't seem to get settled in any one place for more than a few minutes, but that's OK. Forget about your chores and responsibilities, and do what makes you happy.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20. You've always been generous, but there are times when your nature works against you. It's something you need to watch out for today. There are far too many freeloaders.
